

MODEL UNITED NATIONS

Bishop Hartley's Model United Nations is an academic club open to any student who is interested in world politics.

The club works to simulate the processes of the official United Nations through representing nation states and taking positions on complicated global issues.

Students involved in the club develop a better understanding of the very complicated world in which we live. Attending Model U.N. conference both in and out-of-state, gives students an amazing opportunity to interact with high school students from across the country while being academically challenged.

Students who participate in MUN develop academic excellence, leadership skills, and a concern for the world around them.

The club's structure also helps students develop public speaking skills and confidence, a skill that will serve them well in their future college plans and careers.

"From my experience in MUN, I've been able to sharpen my public speaking, negotiation skills, have increased my confidence, and have been able to connect myself with events around the world."

-Quinn Richardson

Model United Nations Advisor

Justin Green

jgreen@cdeducation.org

614.237.5421 ext 10708

bishop-hartley.org